RE: Genetically engineered foods

To those I hope are concerned,

Aside from the fact that we should be entitled to know the exact contents of our food, I want to also express my deep concern with allergic reactions. I am allergic to many things with violent reactions. Let's say there are fish genes in tomatoes to resist cold and I am allergic to fish. What if I were miles away from help and certain that the whole foods I was eating were safe for me. Without labeling there is no way for me to know what is safe aside from buying organic.

I would urge you to fully evaluate the possible effects on our health and environment before continuing to use this method. I also believe it is essential to properly label all foods.

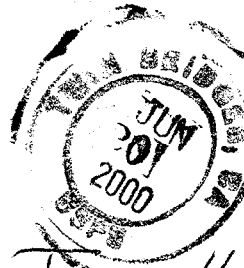

Thanks for your time,
